The Inclusive Culture

Aisha Suleiman is an award-winning diversity and inclusion leader, entrepreneur and keynote speaker.

Topics: Diversity and Inclusion, Allyship in the workplace, Employee Resource Groups, Anti-Racism, Gender Inequality

In recognition of her work in the diversity and inclusion space, Aisha has been included in lists such as the Investing in Ethnicity Top 8 Future Leaders (2018) and the EMpower 100 Ethnic Minority Future Leaders (2020).

Through her company, The Inclusive Culture, Aisha helps organizations achieve their diversity, inclusion, and business goals through effective employee networks as part of their journey towards a more inclusive workplace.

Aisha has worked with renowned global brands like Amazon and IPG Mediabrands, using her experience, passion, and drive for progress to help these companies meet their diversity, equity, and inclusion commitments.

Aisha was one of the pioneering founders of Amazon UK's Black Employee Network (BEN). She led the network as Chair while working as a Program Manager at the global company.

In 2022, Aisha launched True White Allies – a ground-breaking film project that shares the stories of historical White anti-racists from as early as the 1700s to inspire increased allyship and action.

Aisha is also a board member of the Rugby Football League's Inclusion Board. She uses her expertise to support the delivery of its Inclusion, Equality, and Anti-Discrimination plan.

Aisha also hosts The World in Her Words – a podcast that inspires women to take control of their careers through sharing strategies, advice, and inspirational stories of Black women and women of colour.
